mination. Romeo Pancani); Mercutio, Benvolio, and others of the Montagues, now enter, having come to the feast unbidden and disguised; and Mercutio (Orlandini), in reply to a remark of Romeo's that he is troubled by a dream, sings the effective manner. Paris is about to place the wed-Ballad of Queen Mab," the fairies' midwife, who "comes in shape no bigger than an effect; she totters, and falls; and the curtain deagate sione," the words, of course, being substantially a translation of the well-known description in Shakespeare. Here, again, memories of Faust crowd back upon us, the music recalling both the drinkingsong and the serenade of Mephistopheles; but it is a strikingly original composition for all that, and destined to be heard from the manly throats of robust bassos and baritones from this time forth forevermore. It is fanciful in form, as it ought to be, expressing the gayety and free imagination of the poem as perfectly as thought was ever yet expressed to purely musical notes. The accompaniment, running riot in freaks of fancy, and capering about the melody like a frisky sprite, is like music direct meaning, and gives the song neatly and effectively. A capital bit of dialogue follows, Mercutio and the others bantering Romeo upon his desertion of his quondam mistress, Rosaline, and the friends then retire, and give place to Juliet and the nurse, Goltrude (Madame Fleury), between whom we have a few bars of rather ineffective recitative. This, however, is only introductory to a crisp, delicate, arietta for Juliet, in waltz time, which will undoubtedly become the most popular air in the opera, though it is by no means the best. To the music of this charming waltz glimmering feet must henceforth whirl through the mazes of the ball-mom in every part of the dancing world, and, while we write, it is haunting the dreams of hundreds of the lighthearted damsels, who nodded their fair heads over it last night, and applauded with pleased smiles and the soft patting of gloved-hands. Miss Hauck sang it charmingly. The notes fell from her lips like drops of crystal, and the beautiful chroenatic runs were given with absolute correctness. In this arietta the harp, which is liberally used throughout the opera, has some very striking passages. Romeo returns on the conclusion of the waltz, and a tender interview between him and Juliet gives occasion for a very sweet duet, simple in rhythm, rich in original and ingenious phrasing, and breathing the very soul of chaste love. The entrance of Tybalt (Sig. Testa), Paris (Sig. Velden). Mercutio, and other members of the house of Capulet brings about the discovery that an enemy has obtained admission to the festival. Romeo is recognized for a Montague by his voice. Tybalt cries out for vengeance; but old Capulet calms the tumult by repeating his invitation to the dance, and so with a recurrence of the spirited bass song and chorus of

The Second Act, containing the balcony seene, is appropriately prefaced by a short introduction of great tenderness and beauty, principally for violins, with harp accompaniment. Romeo is discovered in Juliet's garden-a scene which has been arranged wish great care and a regard for detail to which we are little accustomed on any New-York stage except that of Wallack's Theater. A passionate cavatina brings Juliet to the window, and while the moonlight streams upon her she answers the wooing of her lover in an exquisite duet, which unfortunately provokes comparison with the garden scene in Gounod's better known opera. To say that it is not equal to the latter is not to deny it high praise. There is perhaps no part of the work in which the characteristic distinction between the music of Romeo and that of Juliet-the intensity of the one, and the purity of the other, is more admirably maintained. The interruption of the meeting by the arrival of Romeo's servant Gregory (Sig. Barili) and a number of his friends, searching for the truant with the regulation stage accessories of cloaks and lanterns, we cannot help regarding as a clumsy intrusion although the chorus is dramatic and agreeable. It was well to have some break in the longdrawn sweetness of the lovers' duet; but the interruption here has no logical sequence. The duet is afterward resumed, Juliet appearing not upon the baleony, but at the door-an arrangement which is no doubt much more convenient than the traditional one though it grates upon our sense of the fitness of things. This second part of the the opera. Passion kindles; love rises to rapture; there is a debeious parting scene, the closing bars of which are especially delicate; and then after Juliet has retired, Romeo brings the act to a close with a charming lit-

the first scene, the festivities are resumed, and the cortain falls.

"Sleep dwell upon thine eyes, peace in thy breast." Act Third is introduced by a fugue, followed by a short and very graceful passage for the clarionet. The curtain rises disclosing Friar Lawrence (Signor Medini) in his cell, where he is joined by Romeo, Juliet, and the nurse, and unites the lovers in marriage. The invocation of the divine blessing is a magnificent scene, and the solemnity and grandeur of the music finds competent interpretation in Signor Medini's fine sonorous voice. The orchestration of this part is to be especially remarked. The prayer leads into a glorious quartette, Santo piacer, in which occurs a striking passage, Dio di bonta, to which there is a return in the last scene of all. The whole of this part is extremely impressive. The scene now changes to a street in Verona where Romeo's page Stephano (Signora Ronconi) enters in search of his master. This is the only important departure which the librettist has made from the text of Shakespeare, except in the way of unavoidable omissions and condensations. Stephano's canzone is a fanciful and agreeable composition, with phrases of well-marked and easily-remembered melody. It is interrupted by the arrival of Gregory, and other retainers of the Capulets, who take exception to some words in the lad's song, and bring on a quarrel. Swords are drawn, but the combat has hardly begun when Romeo, Mercutio, Tybalt, and other leading men of the two factions, appear upon the ground and espouse sides. Mercutio and Tybalt are slain, and the Grand Duke (Muller) arriving at that moment sentences Romeo to immediate exile. The dramatic character of the music of this scene is beyond all praise. The chorus rages with the fire of battle, surges, and sways to and fro, and above all is heard the fierce passion of the chief combatants. But Romeo's cry of agony at the sentence which separates him from his Juliet is tame and spiritless, and makes an ineffective finale to a superb act,

The gem of the opera is the duct between Romeo and Juliet in the latter's chamber at the beginning of the Fourth Act. It opens with a ravishing pianissimo passage, Notte gentil d'Imene, perhaps one of the most exquisitely poetical creations of Gounod's refined and poetical genius. The poem-for there is no other word that fitly expresses the music of this number-changes as it flows on into a torrent of passionate feeling, and subsides again into the gentle strains with which it began. The famous pas sage of Shakespeare upon which it is constructed. Spread thy close curtain, love-performing night," never has had a worthier interpretation. On the approach of daylight, Romeo, after a delicious adieu, leaves the apartment by the balcony. The Nurse, Capulet, and Friar Lawrence now come to announce to Juliet the completion of the arrangements made for her marriage to Paris, all which is conveyed in a short scena and a superb quartett, and the heroine. left alone with the worthy Franciscan consents to the Friar's plan of swallowing a potion which shall send "through all her veins a cold and drowsy humor," and counterfeit the sleep of death. The phrase in which the Friar Lawrence gives Juliet the vial, tion, and the accompanying instrumentation is singularly fine and original. Immediately after this pecurs the only long passage which has been omitted from the present performance. In the original score there is an allegro movement for Friar Lawrence, and Paris and the nuptial party are introduced with a Corteggio auxiale, to which succeed an epithalamial shorus, and a ballet with vocal accompaniment. All these numbers have been remorselessly out. It was undoubtedly necessary to shorten the performance. The entire work being much too long for the taste of Amarican andlences: but we regret that the wed-Beri allor questo filtro, is a beautiful and solemn concep-

ent directions bring the scene to a very effective ter- | ding march at any rate could not have been heard. It would prove extremely popular. The finale of this act opens with a capital passage for the organ, followed by a short but admirable solo for Capulet, which Signor Antonucci renders in the most ding ring on Juliet's finger, when the potion takes scends upon the most beautiful and most telling act of the opera.

In the Fifth Act we have a well-arranged representation of the tomb of the Capulets, with Juliet lying upon a catafalque, robed in the habiliments of the grave. The orchestra plays a lovely movement described in the score as "Il Sonno di Giulicita," or the Sleep of Juliet. It is a repetition and elaboration of an air which occurs in the accompaniment to Capulet's last aria in the previous act. Romeo enters, and after a short, passionate aria swallows a vial of poison; but before it has time to operate Juliet revives. The duet which follows is a wonderful alternation of rapture and from fairy-land. Signor Orlandini, we must not despair, beginning with a touching piano movement, omit to say, enters well into the composer's and rising into the rapturous animation of the Dio di bonta, which occurred before in the Third Act. But the rapture is only of momentary duration. The poison begins to curdle in Romeo's veins. There is a passionate song; and as the chill of death seizes upon him, Juliet stabs herself to the heart, and the curtain falls. We have left ourselves little space to praise in proper terms the principal singers, to whom this beautiful composition has been intrusted. We can only say now that Miss Hauck surprised her best friends by the admirable manner in which she interpreted her admirable part; that no music in which we have yet heard her suits so well as this the freshness of her voice, the simple good taste of her style, and the charm of her young and pretty face; that she acted well, without stiffness, and without apparent effort; that Signor Pancani, though his voice showed signs of wear, especially in the trying high music of the Fourth Act, was an excellent, impassioned Romeo, singing with artistic neatness, and kindling in many passages a warm enthusiasm in his audience; and that the other characters, Antonucci, Orlandini, Testa, and Miss Ronconi, were entirely satisfactory. We have not seen a larger or more appreciative audience at the Academy of Music for many years. Long before the curtain rose the announcement of "Standing Room, only," gave joy to the heart of the Treasurer. The success of the new opera has been triumphant, and we are much mistaken if it does not prove the most popular of recent productions. It will be repeated on Monday. MR. THEO. THOMAS'S POPULAR ORCHESTRAL CON-CERTS.

Mr. Theo. Thomas, who has done so much for music in this city, and whose name is a guarantee of a chaste and careful entertainment, gave the grand open, ing of his Popular Orchestral Concerts at the new Lyric Hall in Sixth-ave, last evening. The entertainment em' braced selections from Verdi, Weber, Meyerbeer, and other composers, which were rendered in a manner to call forth the warmest plaudits of all, who manifested their appreciation of Mr. Thomas's past successes by their presence in the neat little hall where he has made this musical venture. It is to be regretted that this appreciation was less hearty than it might have been, so far as numbers are concerned, in view of Mr. Thomas's past services and the artistic excellence of his present company. It may be, however, that the patrons of art have not yet learned to attend evening concerts so near to the Central Park as the old Crystal Palace grounds, and Mr. Thomas is a brave man to be a ploneer in the tide that is setting up town, but Lyrie Hall will help him to overcome any difficulties that may stand in his way. The city does not afford a more agreeable Concert Koom, or one better adapted for the less ambitious interpretations of the Divine art. The withdrawing and dressing-rooms, too, are tastefully furnished and agreeably situated, with reference to the main hall. It is, we understand, the intention of Mr. Thomas to give a series of popular Orchestral Concerts every Friday and Sunday evenings during the senson, and also to introduce at different times a number of distinguished soloists as a special feature of his entertainments. The first Grand Sunday Concert will be given to morrow evening. braced selections from Verdi, Weber, Meyerbeer, and other

MUSICAL NOTES.

At the Matinée to-day Don Pasquale will be presented at the Academy of Music, with Ronconi, for the only time, in his great part of the Dou. La Favorita is promised for Tuesday.

Our readers are reminded that the first concert of the Philharmonic Society takes place this evening at the Academy of Music. We have already spoken of the magnificent programme announced.

The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein will be transferred from the French Theater to Tweddle Hall, Albany, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, but it will be given at the Matinée to-day, and will take its accustomed position on Wednesday evening next. This evening Mile, Reillez, in five characters and three French comedies, will be the attraction.

THE DRAMA.

Ristori has had a great success in Boston, as Ristori has had a great success in Doston, as Marie Antoinette. Our renders are aware that she is to appear at the French Theater in this city next week, and give three performances, by way of farewell, hefore she departs for Havana. Marie Antoinette should be seen by everybody. It is one of Ristori's best efforts in the art of acting. The performances will be given on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and at a Matinec on Wednesday.

Miss Janauschek was ill on Tuesday evening, and no German performance was given at the Academy, on Thursday evening, however, Miss Jamauschek appeared as Marianne, and was cordially applanded, by a very good audience, for her really grand and touching personation of the woman of the people. Next Wednesday, at a Matinée, she will play Mary Shart, and on Thursday evening will repeat her personation of Medea.

Mr. Bateman's French company will give a formance to night at the French Theater. The pleces ounced are "Une Loge D' Opera," "Columbiae."
"Les Jouvens De Cadillac." Pretty and sprightly , Reillez will appear in five characters.

and "Les Jouvens De Caulinac. They are proposed by Mille. Reillez will appear in five characters.

Matinées will be given to-day at Niblo's Garden, Barnum's Museum, the Olympic, the Broadway Theater, the Academy of Music, the French Theater, the New-York Theater, the Chreus, Banyard's Opera House, and Bunyan Hall, so that no person who wishes to be amused need dispense with recreation. "The Grand Ducheus" will be sung at the French Theater. Van Amburgh's Menagerie may be constantly seen at Barnum's. "Norwood," at the New-York Theater, has steadily attracted good audiences thus far. To the juvenile portion of the community uncommon attractions are presented by the Circus, and by the Olympic spectacle of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Hartz, the Magleian, will commence at Dodworth's Hall on Monday.

THE TURF.

TROTING AT THE FASHION COURSE. A trot which excited a great deal of interest among sporting men came off yesterday at the Fashion Course, in presence of the usual concourse of spectators. W. Borst's b. g. John J. Bradley was matched against "owner's" b. m. American Girl to go to 110 to wagonf, the driver of each to weigh 150 B. The horse was the favorite at the start at the odds of two to one, it being ensidered that the mare, who though a fine, square trot ter, is young and unseasoned, had too onerous a task cut considered that the mare, who though a fine, square trot ter, is young and unseasoned, had too onerous a task cut out for her in going to wagon. It was known, too, that she was out of sorts. The betting was very lively, the edds offered tempting many to invest on the mare's chances. That the horse lost the first heat scarcely altered his favoritism, and he was held at pretty much the same rate in the betting. Afterward, he secunded to have victory completely in his power, especially as the mare was injudiciously driven at her topmost speed to the half-mile pole, and invariably fell off at the finish.

First Heal.—After two ineffectual scorings, the horse being held back each time, the word was given, with the mare half a length in advance. This advantage she increased to a full length on the turn, and to three lengths before the quarter was reached. Down the Flushing stretch they both trotted finely, the mare retaining her lead to the half, which was reached. Down the Flushing stretch they both trotted finely, the mare retaining her lead to the half, which was reached in the good time of 1:13. The horse gained slightly on the turn, and at the three-quarters pole was half a length closer. He pressed the Girl, on swinging into the home stretch, into a slight break, but she regained her feet, and trotting too well to be overtaken, came in a winner by a length, in 2:32‡. The quarter was done in 37 seconds; the half in 1:13.

Second Heal.—The pair got off as before, on the bird trial, American Girl taking the same lead, and making speed to the quarter, which she passed in 37‡ seconds, four lengths in 2:33‡. The half was trotted in 1:14.

Third Heal.—As before the mare got off with the lead, and took the pole at the turn. Apparently her driver had seen his error in forcing the pace, for he was content with the modest lead of a length and a half. This he kept to the beginning of the home stretch, and here as before the horse made his rush. Seemingly he came a little too fast. for the driver of the mare pulled her acro broke, giving the horse a slight lead before she came to her work. At the half-mile he had half a length, on the turn he drew away, and at the three-quarter pole had eight hengths, the mare being up and down atternatelyy. She seemed entirely demoralized on the home-stretch, and Bradley won as he liked, by five lengths, in 2374.

Fifth Heat.—The factics of the second heat were repeated by the driver of the Girl. He rushed her to the front, and gave her a big lead at the half-mile pole, but from this point the horse gained, and passing her on the home-stretch, won by two lengths. Time, 2364.

GEN. SHERIDAN ON GOVERNOR'S ISLAND.

Gen. Sheridan, accompanied by Col. Moore and Col. Crosby, left the Whitehall pier yesterday afternoon to visit Governor's Island. The steamer Henry Smith took the distinguished visitors across, and on their arrival they were received at the landing by Gen. Wallen, the commandant of the Island, Gen. Brown, Col. Conrad, and Col. Woodruff, who lescorted them from the pier. On their arrival at the parade ground the band struck up "Hail to the Chief," and the appropriate sainte for a Major-General was delivered from Castle William. They then went to the General's quarters, where a select party from New-York and Brooklyn, who had been invited to meet the General, were in waiting. Among the visitors were Gen. Ingalis, Assistant Quartermaster General, Gen. Sawtelle, Gen. Carlton, Gen. Leslie, Admiral Bell of the Navy-Yard, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Ronaids, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert of Brooklyn, and numerons naval and military officers. Soon after the greetings, the party sat down to a mignificent collation, given by Gen. Wallen, and during the repast the band played several verychoice pieces, selected from the compositions of Offenbach, Verdi, Flotow, and Auber. After lunch, the party andjourned to the ball-room in the building, formerly used as the Post Hospital, where the band had already taken their position, and were soon loat in the piecasures of the waitz. Dancing was continued by most of the party until 6 o'clock, when they wound up with a Virginian reel. At about 5 o'clock, the General and staff, accompanied by Conrad, and Col. Woodruff, who lescorted them from the w gentlemen, returned to New-York, and on their if at the pier the General was handsomely cheered w persons who had learned of his visit.

The Grand Jury of the United States Circuit Court, pow in session at Hartford, has found true bills Court, now in session at Hartford, has found true bills against John R. Conkilin, cashier of the First National Bank of New-Milford, for embezzling over $53,000. The embezzlements covered the last 18 months, but were concealed by faise entries in several accounts. The Mercantille National Bank of New-York, and Messrs. Fisk & Hatch of New-York are reported to be victims. To the discount account of the bank there is a debit of over $50,000, which was abstracted in separate sums at different times. It is said that one of the employée of the bank was aware for some time that Conkilin was defalenting, and that the disclosure was eventually made by Conkilin to the directors when this employe had pressed him hard to discontinue the course which he had been pursuing. Conkilin enjoyed every opportunity for embezzlement, as the directors held no stated meetings, and the President and coshier had entire charge of the discounts. Conkilin was permitted to leave the town without any interference from the bank authorities, and when subsequently arrested at Poughkeepsie they declined to demand his retention. All of the mency, except about $6,000 worth of property, which has been restored, is a total loss. The surpius of the bank, with its earnings, since the discovery, leaves its capital unimpaired. Wmr H. Barnum, a nephow of Mr. P. T. Barnum, and teller in the Pequannock National Bank of Bridgeport, is accused of embezzling about $41,000. He was detected last Summer, but has not since been arrested. His embezzlements are supposed to have begun in 1803, when the bank was a State institution. Nearly all the stolen money was abstracted by manipulating the deposit account. The discovery of the defaleations was made by the cashier offering to write up some depositors' pass-books, which Baraum had falled to do. Barnum immediately left Bridgeport under pretense of his wife's illness at Saratoga. It is said that the Bank has already unsuccessfully spent $2,100 for detective service. In 1823 Mr. P. T. against John R. Conklin, cashler of the First National left Bridgeport under pretense of his wife's illness at Saratoga. It is said that the Bank has already unsuccessfully spent $2,000 for detective service. In 18:33 Mr. P. T. Barnum gave bonds in $15,000 for his nephew, but the Bank did not require a yearly renewal of the bonds as required by law. In May last a new bond was taken out for the same amount, signed by Mr. P. T. Barnum, young Barnum's father, and a Mr. Tomlinson, for $5,000 each. In the last bond the word "dollars" was omitted, making the bond read "fifteen thousand" simply, and it is said that, taking advantage of this informality, Mr. P. T. Barnum refuses to pay.

ANOTHER BOILER EXPLOSION—TWO LIVES LOST.

A singular boiler explosion occarred at about o'clock last night, on the steamer Matanzas, of the Leary line of Charleston steamers, lying at Pier No. 14, and resulted in the loss of one life, and it is feared of two. The Matanzas arrived on Wednesday, principally laden with cotton. The boiler in which the explosion took place is that of a small donkey-engine, used in pumping out the ship. The engine had been at rest since 4 p. m. The fire was banked up as it was purposed to pump out the ship has night. At the time of the accident, according to the story of a fireman, only four or five pounds of steam was on, and the water was up to the third cock in the boiler. The engineers and firemen were in the engineer's room, some distance off. The Quartermaster of the ship, Henry Magee, was sitting on the deck, directly above the boiler, talking to his sen, and a third person, whose identity is yet uncertain. From an unknown cause the boiler exploded, the upper portion was torn from its fastenings and carried through the deck, striking Mr. Magee with such force as to hurl him into the air, whence he landed on the pier a dead man. His breast was crashed by the boiler, and his head injured by the fail. His son staggered back a few feet, but was searcely scratched. The other one of the trio, who, it was supposed, was the mate of the ship, disappeared. The watchman thinks that he heard cries for help from the water. Search was made with lanteras, but without success. Henry Magee resided at No. 66 Hudson-st., in this city. Matanzas arrived on Wednesday, principally laden with

HOMICIDE IN THE HARBOR.

On Thursday evening, while the British bark E. Miller, bound from this port to the west coast of Africa, was making preparations for salling, the first mate Alfred W. Tooker, disputed with one of the seamon Alfred W. Tooker, disputed with one of the seamen named William Hanson. The sailor was impertment, and Tooker becoming exasperated, seized a handspike and struck Hanson on the head. He recled backward, and fell to the deck, striking his head against the rail in his descent. He was picked up and taken to his bunk. No surgeon was procurable, and about midnight, Hanson died. Jams Conners, a pilot, who was engaged to take the vessel to sea, on ascertaining that the injured man was dead, caused the arrest of Tooker. The prisoner is a native of Suffolk County, N. Y., aged 35 years. Hanson was a native of Germany, 45 years of age, and is said to have been of a peaceable, quiet disposition. Both men were under the influence of drink.

TAX APPORTIONMENT OF HUDSON COUNTY, N. J. The Special Committee of the Hudson County Board of Chosen Freeholders, on Tax Apportionment, have submitted a report recommending the abolishing of the poll-tax as impracticable, for the reason that it is seldom or never more than partially collected, the result of which is that the unpaid tax is assessed the following year on the tax-paying part of the community. On the subject of equalization of taxation, they think that all real estate and personal property should be assessed, but that mortgages should be exempted from taxation. To more fully equalize taxation and apportion the same, the Committee recommend that the Board of Chosen Freeholders appoint one competent person from each township and ward, to constitute a Board of Correction and Review of the tax-lists overy year. The report has been adopted, and a copy of the report, with a communication from Mr. Wortendyke, Counsel for the Board, has been sent to the Legislative Commission. have submitted a report recommending the abolishing what I am games from started work, as to common and any account year with the parties.

Previous to stadying Marsh I had examined a number of "Works on Bookkeeping." Each had some peculiar excellence which its publishers vanished but I found Marsh's Work superior in the following points Is. Its defaultions are plainly told and easily understood, as well as more comprehensive than any other work I ever saw. 2d. Its methods are such as are in actual use among bookkeepers and business men. 2d. The printing of the work, the showing of the proper places for relings, feetings, balancings, &c., being done in red ink as they actually are put on a set of books, is invariable to a person who studies ent of a mercantile comming-room; and 4th. It will stand the test of procedure, which can be said of but free works of its class. It wish it every success, for it is fraely a meritorical work. I have also examined his Single Entry Course, and an much pleased with it. During the last two years I have instructed a manufapic saked with it. During the last two years I have instructed a managing their books. It this unsolicited testimonial to the works of your publications will be of any act to you, you are welcome to it.

I have had nothing to do with editectional matters for some time past, but propose in future to give them my attention. Please send me your interest classing and an early of your "spacies diliculator," and also whether you have needed and a copy of your "spacies diliculator," and also whether you ascen, tested any new classical works recently. To William B. Mann, James M. Scovel, W. W. Ware, Louis R.

Broomall, Henry Gorman, J. E. Coe, Trustees of Riverside Insti GENTLEMEN: I am the widow of a soldier who was Sergeant in Cor pany C of the 12th Beginsent of New-Jersey Volunteers. My husband died on the battle-field from wounds received at Spottsylvania, Virginia, May 12, 1864. I have three children, and am very desirons of having my son, John R. Schell, received and cared for by the Riverside Institute It will be a great help to me, and I think it would be only just to the memory of my husband, who felt fighting for his country. Name truly, SARAH E. SCHELL. PHILADRIPHIA, Nov. 14, 1967.

Madam: Your letter stating your desire that John R. Schall, your son shall be received and cared for by the Riverside Institute, New-Jersey as been duly considered by the board at their meeting to-day. It has been referred to the committee, and will doubtless receive an is robuns of soldiers or sailors, by January 1, A. D. 1868. You are right in thinking it is only just to the memory of your husband, that his son should be cared for by the country he died to save. Yours very trait.

WILLIAM B. MANN. JAMES M. SCOVEL, W. W. WARE, LOUIS R. BROOMALL, J. E. COE, HENRY GORMAN, Trustees, etc.

Section 2 of the charter of the Riverside Institute for Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans, reads as follows:

And be it enoted, That every person who shall annually pay to the Freasurer of the Riverside Institute for Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans, he sum of $1 or upward, shall be a member of the said Riverside Institute for Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans while such person so contrib and every person who shall pay $20 at one time shall be a member for J. M. SCOVEL, Secretary Board of Trustees.

Appe al for a Bullding Fund for the Newsboys' Ledg-ing House. —The public are aware that for 13 years the CHILDERN's A15 SOCIETY have been sustaining and carrying on, through the sid of in-dividual contributions, a large lodging house for newsboys and other street hors.

During this period 32,438 lodgings, and 194,202 meals have been furnished these lade, of whom the whole number lodged is 46,340. In this time ±14,501 70 have been deposited by the bors, in the Savings Bank of the Roome, and ±14,739 74 have been paid by them toward the expenses of the Rodging house. In the last year alone there were lodged 8,492 different hoys, 49,519 lodgings, and 33,633 meals were furnished. The number of orphann thus sided was 2,925, and of half-orphans, 2,934.

The object of the institution is to shelter, instruct, and thus elevate this nuteresting and unfortunate class of children. From the lodging house the society sends forth the bors to places in the country, or near the city. Thousands of hors have been saved from thievery and a vagaboud life, and any become marfal editions.

The present rooms of the lodging house is not smillently large or commodious for the numbers of boys thronging to them, and they are liable, at the beginning of any year, to be taken from the society, when it would be extremely difficult to lease others in that quarter of the city. The Trustees are deeply impressed with the importance of making this beneatherst charity permanent, by procuring a proper building for it. There will always be homeless boys here for whom some such provision must be made while the city continues. They wish to provide a building which shall be a shelter and a home to the houseless lad, wondering friendless through the great city, where he can find friends, and receive instruction, and be put on the pathway to a better life. Sarely no person could spare something from his daily lararies for a better carpose than thus to found a permanent holding-bouse for street-boys. The necessary fund—at least #50,000—cannot be raised unless each individual who has a suppathy for poor and homeless children shall feel a responsibility in doing high part toward making it no.

Dr. Sichenek and his Medicines.

An Erract from The Boston Journal.

No physician in the whole country is better or more widely known than Dr. J. H. Schenek of Philadelphia; who visits were city, seakly, and who has a permanent office at No. 35 Hannerest. We have on several economic visited Dr. Schenek's rooms; we have seen his patients (for the second or third time perhaps.) and neticed the improvement in some of them; we have beard the Doctor address them in a body, when his limited time have beard the Country of the second or the second of the second or the second of the second or would not enable him to examine them separately; and we now add our cured from consuming disease and realored to health thousands upon thousands who had been the drawn round of the regular, irregular, and other sumption. It is not a matter of wonder that he has entire confidence in the cost erative powers of his own medicine. He is an atrong, vigorous, and nest erative powers of his own medicine. He is as strong, represe, such abor-enduring a man as one would be likely to see in going over the city a whole month. The fact that he practices his arhanus profession the entire day, and then travels the entire night to reach his next office, as from Boston to New-Yerk, Philadelphin, and Baltimore each week indicates both the pressure of his business and the extraordinary demands upon his phraical nature. If he was not "as tough as a truck horse," to ner a homely but expressive comparison, he could not hold, out as he does, and maintain his vigorous health and exuberant flow of animal spirits. The secret of it is having cured binwelf by the right sort of remedies, and reserving to them personally whenever occasion requires. What was seen sorting to them personally whenever occasion requires. What was seen ingly so miraculous in his case was not a whit more than is witnessed in hundreds of cases monthly under his treatment. The plain and emphatis truth is, his medicines act with and assist nature, instead of ranning counter to her methods. In this important respect they differ essentially from those used by the medical faculty. His theory of disease, management of patients, and kindred matters, are also in contrast to other physicians and so much so as to render his system peculiar and original. In the curr of pulmonary complaints, affections of the liver and stemach, we presented Dr. Schunck now stands at the head of American practitioners. This is certainly the ease, if the number of oures he effects is an indication of skill and correct doctrine. Dr. Schenck has three preparations which

1. PULMONIC SYRUP.

SEAWEED TONIC. 3. MANDRAKE PILLS.

These are the magic wands which he wields with such wonderful, bene-ficent effects. With these he attacks the strongholds of disease and achieves secretees which are the admiration and astonishment of the pub-lic. With the marvelous healing virtues of these compounds, saided to lie. With the marvelous healing virtues of these compounds, added to the good advice of the Ductor, there are few cases, indeed, that are not followed by all that the patient can hope. His method of capeling discuss from the system is thus made direct, simple and effective. He does not experiment with and victimize those who seek him for treatment. He knows just what his medicines will and won't do, and no one will be left in doubt as to the matter. If we know him, he does not want say patient's money that cannot be helped or cured. People who have baddings, had livers and had stomache should advice with Dr. Scheuck, for he is the man to help them. The tric of bads just named comprehend, or cause, about all the maladies flesh is heir to, and once taken in hand in cause, about all the maledies flesh is helr to, and once taken in hand in the right inhuner, a cure is likely to follow. Dr. Schenek makes the atomach clean and strong and healthy, and puts it in working order as a starting point. This is in fact the foundation of his cores. He then sets it to making the material for good blood, to be sent over the whole hedg.

Very sensibly and naturally, be believes in making the mill gried the corn. Of course, the liver and other organs are looked after sharply at the same time. It is not probable that any disease which is at all curable the same time. It is not probable that any disease union as an accessed within his line of prestice routh resist Dr. Schunch's junct admirable combination of specifies, and the sick may therefore go to him with every expectation of restored health—the greatest of human blessings.

Dr. J. H. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, No. 15 North Sixihest., corner of Commerce st., Philadelphia, overy Saturday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.

He is also professionally at No. 22 Bendet, New-York, every Taxaday, and No. 25 Hapoverset. Boaton, every Wednesday. He gives advice free.

and No. 35 Hanover-st., Boston, every Wednesday. He gives advice free but for a thorough examination with his Respiremeter the price is $5. Office hours at each city from 9 s. m. to 3 p. m.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, each $150 per bottle, or $750 per half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 20 cents a box. A full supply of Dr. Schenek's medicines for sale at all times at his rooms; also by druggists generally. SARSAPARILLIAN.
